This talk was delivered on 23 Sept 2016 to the Breed Health Coordinators of The KC in Southam, UK. Thank you to The KC for the opportunity to talk to this group of experts.

What is your/ your breed club's biggest challenge/issue
right now?

We all have problems... what is challenging you most these days?

POST TALK NOTES: Thanks for all the responses. I have not had time to go through them in detail but here are a couple of themes I have noticed:

- How do we get breeders to be honest about problems in their dogs/ line/ the breed?
- How do we do good health surveys? Some on the same line as above ... how to get people to share information.
- And maybe also on the same line... need for data.
- Some of you had more than one important challenge!

You are not alone

Which diseases are ...most common ... most important?

How do we find out numbers? Prevalence?
Health survey?

How do we make sense of all these new tests... and the old ones
And the problems for which we don't have a test?

What research should we fund?

Where do we find the best evidence? Advice?
... from experts and others who are struggling with the same issues?

Educate educate educate! What works?

Yo There are no dog problems ... there are only PEOPLE problems.

How do we motivate changes in attitudes and behaviours?

Can we learn from...benefit from working with people with other breeds and from other countries?

What research should we fund? Advice?
Educate educate educate! Who are struggling

What works?

NOTE: Link to Human Behaviour Change for Animal Welfare conference

Having just recently attended the Human Behaviour Change for Animal Welfare conference, ... there is a wealth of knowledge, experience and tools to promote behaviour change in people. We need to find and use existing information and expertise from many other disciplines and fields where Complex Systems and Behaviour Change Theory are studied and applied.

DogWellNet.com will try to post some of these tools... but it could be a good topic for a workshop with those needed to promote change among dog people!

Purpose Today

Rate of at least one insurance claim (veterinary care event) in the six year period

- Forum for / engagement of breed clubs

- Highlight their work outside their country e.g. Sweden and Finland
- Demonstrate leaders e.g. Dachshund Breed Council
- Connect with clubs in other countries e.g. Berner-IWG; Otterhound
- Access to breeding strategies, programs and data from other countries

- Added strength for promoting programs in your own country – members and stakeholders see what is happening elsewhere

We have contributions/ collaboration with BMD, e.g. Ian Seath and Dachshund club, e.g. Otterhounds... international efforts... threatened breed, needs to be treated as one global population ... Breed data on 130 breeds, translations of RAS and JTO on dozens of breeds, highlighting national breeds...

POST MEETING: Several of you have links with breed clubs in Sweden and Finland. You could help us to encourage more to translate their breeding strategies. In Sweden we have a translator who can help them.

- Regardless of you breed, check out the latest translation from Finland.
- The German Pinscher people have been doing outstanding work!

USA Today article... Journalist added my words to the beginning of her article 'At Westminster you will see a lot of beautiful, healthy dogs' ... backed up with specific examples of efforts underway, e.g. Breed Watch.

Efforts for Brachys from various countries.

Innovative programs for healthier dogs... German French Bulldogs, French English Bulldogs... UK Bulldog club.

- KCs - Increased collaboration – synergy
 - Address shared goals/ common needs
 - Reduce redundancy
- E.g. Harmonization of Genetic Testing initiative

KCs need collective voice about tests and testing, promotion of standards etc. UK can do this... but lots of results/dogs coming in from other countries.... Individual KC is the 'bad guy' vs. IPFD is the independent organization that coordinates efforts...

How can you participate and help?

- Sign up to DogWellNet.com... 'Breed Club Health Representative'
- Assist us to increase the information on your breed
- Identify international efforts / other collaborators
- Support IPFD

We first need your collaboration and contributions as experts.

But we need financial support as well! If you know and individuals or foundations or organizations who might help... please let us know.

How can you participate and help?

- Provide information on health surveys you have done
- Provide commentary on similarities and differences in your breed internationally – standards or other
- Volunteer as a moderator??

Tell US what YOU need!

DogWellNet.com is about building community and adapting to its members! We are starting slowly and always open to input.

And what about other stakeholders?

Vets... researchers... judges... government/ regulatory bodies... they all must take responsibility and help out... for the dogs and the people.

We need a kinder, gentler approach as agents of change...

- A collaborative approach requires an empathetic relationship with the 'changee'
- We have to find the motivators and influencers
- We need to create the environment in which they can and will motivate themselves.

- People only change when they perceive value. So what are the motivators? For many of us health and welfare issues are obvious. Not so for all.
- What people say vs. what they mean... it is all about the dogs... or maybe winning in the show ring? Or fame as a breeder.
- We need people to be honest... not so that we can judge and shame them... but so we can design our messages to be appropriate and powerful.
- And / or we need to identify the ones who are 'onside' and work with them...

Together!

This slide was a quick comment relative to discussions that had arisen in the earlier talk.

FYI – based on discussions at the meeting. This is another outtake from the original Agria Breed Profiles from 1995-2002 which are not yet available, but will be soon. My point here is that we need age patterns of disease and death not just median age at death to really understand breed differences. (This is life insured dogs up to 10 years of age, 1995-2002).

Some brief comments: To compare to other data... in this graph for Bernese, 50% were dead by about 8.5 years and that would be the median age at death. German Shepherds are hitting the 50% line at 10...CKCS getting close to that line...we might guess 10.5 or 11 as the median. All we can say for the Golden is that 80% are still alive at 10.

Interesting is the lower survival to 5 years for the GSDs... our data show 'death' due to e.g. hip dysplasia and other causes in early ages.; maybe related to dogs being unfit to 'work'??
