BRIEF HISTORICAL SUMMARY: The creation of the breed started in 1951 in Leningrad. Following breeds Bolognese, Shih-Zzu, Lhasa-Apso were involved in the creation of the RUSSKAYA TSVETNAYA BOLONKA. The principal breed's attributes were small size (20-24 cm), rich unicolored coat. In 1966 the standard for the "tsvetnaya bolonka" was confirmed by Ministry of Agriculture. In 1973 the Moscow City Executive Committee decided to form the "Moscow section of Dog fanciers" (MGOLS) out of the section "Swerdlowsk interdistrict for companion and Toydogs". Active breeding work and cooperation with cynologists of Leningrad approved MGOLS which became the main center of genetic concerns for the "tsvetnaya bolonka". In 80's as popularity of the breed increased new clubs and breeders emerged. The "National Tsvetnaya Bolonka Breed Club" was founded in 1999.
